

Bringing the Far East Near

Over its own steel all the way, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul runs direct to Puget Sound. There, at Seattle and Tacoma, its famous transcontinental train "The Olympian" connects with your own palatial United States ships to the Orient. The transmountain run of this train is electrified; the journey to the Far East is made shorter and pleasanter by "Milwaukee" comfort and care. When you go to the Orient go by way of Puget Sound, over the line that accustomed travelers call the most progressive railroad in the world.
